Description

Surgical supplies include, but are not limited to: scalpels, syringes, and dressings. Surgical trays may be designed entirely for surgical supplies or they may contain surgical supplies, and other items (e.g., medicine glass, instruments) necessary to perform a procedure.

Commercial Plan Policy

Surgical Trays

Surgical trays are considered included in surgical procedures, Evaluation and Management services, and all other procedure or services provided in an office-based setting.

The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) previously paid for surgical trays when certain procedures were provided in a physician's office. The additional allowance was made because the physician practice-expense component of the Medicare Fee Schedule was not fully implemented in the Resource Based Relative Value Study (RBRVS). In 2002, the physician practice-expense component of the RBRVS became fully implemented and code A4550 was designated as a 'B' status code; 'B' status indicates bundled codes. No separate payment is made for the surgical tray by CMS as the payment is included in the service and considered 'incident to'.

Because SelectHealth uses the RBRVS, including the practice-expense portion of the fee schedule as the primary (first) factor in determination of the maximum allowable fee (MAF) the cost of the tray represented by code A4550 is included in the reimbursement for procedures. Therefore, code A4550 will be denied as a bundled code.

Supplies and Materials

Effective January 1, 2005, SelectHealth requires physicians to report supplies and materials using HCPCS Level II codes rather than Physicians' Current Procedural Terminology (CPT®) code 99070. When a miscellaneous, nonspecific code, such as 99070 is reported to SelectHealth, the nonspecific code may allow duplicate payment, or payment for non-covered services/supplies. Code 99070 will be denied and physicians will need to report a more specific HCPCS Level II code. If a specific HCPCS Level II code is not available, an unlisted HCPCS Level II code applicable to the section (i.e., A9999 Miscellaneous DME supply or accessory, not otherwise specified, B9999 NOC for parenteral supplies, J9999 NOC, antineoplastic drug) should be reported along with medical documentation or invoices for consideration of payment.

Many surgical supplies are considered included in a physician's service. Please refer to the "incident to" policy for further clarification.

SelectHealth considers surgical trays and other supplies to be included in the reimbursement for procedures performed in the office setting and are not separately payable.
